

CEC 6, Librarians can help address reporting concerns in the biomedical literature, particularly for systematic reviews – here's how! 14:00-17:30,
Monday 12 June 2017

Facilitators: Shona Kirtley, Isla Kuhn, Tom Roper, Rebeca Isabel-Gómez, Alicia Fátima Gómez Sánchez.

- |       |   |
|-------|---|
| 14:00 | Welcome, housekeeping and introduction. Types and characteristics of documents reporting biomedical research. |
| 14:10 | Small group work: overview of common deficiencies in biomedical research reporting                            |
| 14:35 | Common deficiencies in biomedical research reporting  |
| 14:40 | The scale of the problem  |
| 14:45 | Group work: Reasons for and consequences of poor reporting of studies   |
| 15:05 | What are the consequences of poor reporting?  |
| 15:10 | Reporting guidelines and how they can help address deficiencies in reporting                                  |
| 15:35 | Refreshment break   |
| 15:50 | How can librarians promote reporting guidelines and support the reporting of systematic reviews               |
| 16:00 | Group discussion: Barriers to and ways to raise awareness among clinicians and researchers                    |
| 16:30 | Next actions: what new activities or services could you implement?  |
| 17:10 | Summing up, videos from special guests, questions and conclusion  |
| 17:30 | Close   |